

resistance

The brief: Don't Panic is an online arts, music, style and culture magazine. Create a poster for their webzine that represents the theme of 'resistance'.

Outcome: I decided to represent 'resistance' on a state political level due to the public concern about Queensland Government and the questionable way it is being run by premiere Anna Bligh and the Labour Party. Inspired by the punk, futurism and Russian Constructivism movements, I used a combination of mixed collage to form typography and imagery with warm colours to create a poster that would make the public take notice and highlight the government's mistakes. An envelope also accompanies the poster.
